Medicaid provides health coverage that helps low-income seniors, children, and people with disabilities get needed health care. It gives parents and other adults economic security through health coverage that protects them from medical debt and allows them to stay healthy and engaged in their community. It is jointly run by the federal and state governments.

Medicaid helps 25,700 of Arkansas’s babies get a healthy start in life each year.

74,100 of Arkansas’s seniors get health care through Medicaid, including nursing home care and services that help them live at home.

Medicaid provides 159,400 people with disabilities in Arkansas access to critical care that helps them live independently.[1]

That’s 67% of births in our state.

That’s 16% of seniors in our state.

That’s 32% of people with disabilities in our state.

Medicaid Is Effective

Medicaid Improves Health

- Medicaid beneficiaries are more likely than the uninsured to access preventive care, such as mammograms for women and vaccinations for kids.
- They also are more likely to have a regular office or clinic where they can get primary care.
- Expanding Medicaid coverage for low-income adults reduced mortality by 6 percent on average, a key study found.

Medicaid Provides Vital Support to Seniors and People With Disabilities

Medicaid allows millions of seniors and people with disabilities to get the support and care they need to live at home, as well as nursing home care for those who need it. In fact, Medicaid pays for half of all long-term services and supports provided across the country.

[1] Includes people with physical conditions (such as traumatic brain injuries), intellectual or developmental disabilities (such as cerebral palsy), and serious behavioral disorders or mental illness (such as schizophrenia). Nearly two-thirds of beneficiaries who qualify due to disability do not receive Supplemental Security Income.
Medicaid expansion supports workers in Arkansas.

In 2017, only 43% of private-sector employers in Arkansas offered health benefits to their employees. Many workers who don’t get coverage through their jobs rely on Medicaid coverage for themselves and their families.

321,000 Arkansans gained coverage through Arkansas’s Medicaid expansion. Many work in jobs that pay low or moderate wages but are crucial for the state’s economy.

For example:

- Restaurants and hospitality: 25,300
- Retail sector (including grocery and clothing stores): 24,300
- Health care (including hospital and home health care workers): 21,100
- Manufacturing (including bakeries and steel mills): 13,700
- Administrative support: 13,400
